From St. Faustina's Diary Through Love and Mercy

Meditation

September 25, [1937]. When I learned how great are the difficulties in this whole work, I went to the Lord and said, "Jesus, don't You see how they are hindering Your work?" And I heard a voice in my soul: Do as much as is in your power, and don't worry about the rest. These difficulties prove that this work is Mine. Be at peace so long as you do all that is in your power (Diary, 1295).

The Lord said to me, It should be of no concern to you how anyone else acts; you are to be My living reflection, through love and mercy. I answered, "Lord, but they often take advantage of my goodness." That makes no difference, My daughter. That is no concern of yours. As for you, be always merciful toward other people, and especially toward sinners (Diary, 1446).

My Prayer Response With St. Faustina

Lord Jesus, in difficulties in my work and relationships, may I rejoice and do what is in my power with peace. May I always be merciful.

The words of Jesus appear in boldface type.

Gospel Reading—Sunday, March 30, 2025

Luke 15:1-3,11-32

Jesus teaches about forgiveness in the parable of the Prodigal Son.

Our familiarity with today's parable risks dulling us to its tremendously powerful message. We call this the parable of the lost son or the prodigal son. Any focus on the younger son, however, must also be balanced by an examination of the unusual behavior of the father.

First we must imagine our first response to the audacity of a son who asks for his inheritance before his father has died. Indignation would certainly be a justifiable response to such a request. Yet the father in this parable agrees to honor the son's request and divides his property among his two sons. How might we describe such a father? Foolish comes to mind, but so does trusting. Without property of his own, the father must rely upon his sons to provide for his well-being.

The younger son takes his inheritance and leaves home. The older son remains, continuing to provide for the father and the household. Having been disgraced by the younger son, the father spends some time watching the road for the return of the lost son. When he eventually sees his wayward son returning, the father not only welcomes him but also runs out to greet him and then honors him with a party. We say that this father is loving and forgiving. Yet these adjectives only begin to describe the depth of love and mercy that characterize the father.

We find no surprise in the anger of the older son. Yet the father appears sad and even confused by the older son's indignation. He says in reply that they should celebrate because the lost son had returned. The father is filled with gratitude and love for the older son's faithfulness. This love is in no way diminished by the father's rejoicing at the return of the younger son. Yet the older son's jealousy reveals his limited understanding of the depth of his father's love.

The Fourth Sunday of Lent is traditionally called Laetare Sunday. Laetare is a Latin word that means "rejoice." Today's Gospel describes the reason for our joy: God's great love for us has been revealed in Jesus. Through his Passion, Death, and Resurrection, Christ has reconciled us with God and one another.

Pro-Life Answers to False Pro-Choice Arguments (Part XIV)
"Abortion is better than children living in poverty or with disabilities".

If we are going to say "perfect" human life has value, but imperfect life does not, why does that discrimination have to end at birth? If it is compassionate to take the life of an unborn child who might conceivably live a "terrible life" someday in the future, surely it is even more compassionate to take the lives of those children actually living a terrible life now!

There are many children growing up in poverty today in America, but has anyone ever heard an argument that their mothers have the right to take their lives, since they cannot afford to raise them? No one makes such an absurd and heartless argument because no amount of financial hardship can justify taking the life of another human being, particularly an innocent child.

Abortion advocates support abortion on demand. They insist that women have the right to abort their children for any reason, or no reason at all. Therefore appealing to the hard cases of financial instability is just a smoke-screen designed to mask their incredibly broad agenda.

The solution to poverty is not found in aborting the children of the poor. We have been doing that since 1973 and it most definitely has not worked. The real issue is not poverty, but the humanity of the unborn child.

Similarly, the suggestion that we should abort children who might grow up with a disability is barbaric and inhumane and has no place in a just society. Again, our disabilities should no more disqualify us from life before birth than they do after birth. If someone is born "normal", but later becomes handicapped, is he/she less entitled to the protection of the law? Furthermore, the argument is built on conjecture----on the mere "likelihood" that a child will have some kind of disability. Often, the tests prove wrong and even more often, these children, if allowed to live, end up with lives of joy and happiness that far exceeds those of their "more healthy" peers.

Anyone who tries to eliminate suffering by terminating the lives of the "sufferers" is establishing an extremely dangerous precedent! Who gets to design the "perfectness" scale?

The Covering of Crosses and Images

The crosses and images are veiled from the Fifth Sunday of Lent until the Easter Vigil celebration because Christ, during this time, no longer walked openly among the people, but hid himself. Hence in the papal chapel the veiling formerly took place at the words of the Gospel: "Jesus autem abscondebat se." Another reason is added by Durandus, namely that Christ's divinity was hidden when he arrived at the time of His suffering and death. The images of the saints also are covered because it would seem improper for the servants to appear when the Master himself is hidden (Nilles, "Kal.", II, 188).
